Welcome Back!

Our office would like to welcome back our Principal Investigators (PI's) and their staff. We know this summer was a challenging experience all around, and we're looking forward to helping our researchers get back on track this fall. Included in this bulletin is a recap of important updates you may have missed during the break...

HSU Campus Ready: Research & Creative Activities

The Office of Research & Sponsored Programs (ORSP) is working closely with HSU leadership to monitor COVID-19 developments and provide appropriate guidance related to research activities and externally funded projects. Find the latest updates here. Various types of research will continue on campus, prioritizing those activities that are critical or cannot be delayed. Research that may be conducted virtually will continue online for now.

ORSP is maintaining limited office hours on campus between 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., Monday - Friday with only essential personnel present on campus to maintain business continuity for hiring employees and payroll processing. If you need to schedule an in-person appointment during those hours, please contact hsuf@humboldt.edu so we can make sure someone is available to meet you. We will make every effort to expedite all in-person interactions for those critical business functions.

The ORSP website is also a good source of information about current research activities and protocols. If you have more specific questions, please email your respective Grant Analyst. If you're looking for guidance on responsible conduct of research, including Institutional Review Board (IRB) and human subject research, CITI provides an overview of COVID-19, prevention strategies, recommended laboratory practices, and points to consider as students, staff, and faculty move forward to a return to activities and operations within research institution settings. We will continue to monitor the best research practices and guidelines in order to maintain health and safety among our research community. Please refer to the Campus Ready website for all the latest campus safety recommendations.
